

Bourne U3A – Garden Competition

I am no gardener, but I usually plant a few vegetables at this time of year. The veg patch is on the north side of the garden and south facing. It gets some organic compost once a year and I dig in some green manure if I have remembered to plant any. Generally, it suffers from benign neglect, but usually manages to produce a reasonable crop of potatoes, beans, courgettes and tomatoes with some raspberries and strawberries. I use some pots and containers for additional strawberries, cut and come again lettuce, and carrots. I hope that 'going public' in a garden competition may give me the motivation to take a bit more care of it this year.

The North facing vegetable patch

Window boxes for lettuce and carrots

Potatoes growing in bags to supplement those in the veg patch

25th April 2020